Challenges and Choices at Work in a Time of Heightened Worker Activism

Program Co-Chairs: Jim Pruitt, LERA; Harry Katz, ILERA; Javier Ramirez, FMCS

DEADLINE FOR SESSION PROPOSALS AND SINGLE PAPER ABSTRACTS IS NOV. 15, 2023.

About Us

LERA, ILERA AND FMCS are excited to bring you this unique joint conference that brings together the finest practitioners, academics, and neutrals in the world of labor relations. Submit your proposals to be a part of this one-of-a-kind event. LERA's mission bridges research, practice and policy, as well as stakeholders. ILERA's general purpose is to promote the study of labor and employment relations throughout the world in the relevant academic disciplines. The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service (FMCS) is a federal agency that works to build better, more effective workplace relationships and mitigate the damage from inevitable conflict through preventive dialogue, honest communication, and responsive strategies.

Submission Requirements

Proposals should include a balance of perspectives, expertise, and content. We accept submissions from different perspectives and disciplines, including, but not limited to:

- Dispute Resolution
- Economics
- Sociology
- Labor and Employment Law
- Industrial Relations
- Political Science
- Unionization
- Human Resource Studies

Presentations may take a variety of forms: Paper sessions (symposia), expert panels and lectures, workshops, skill-building, professional development, debates, roundtable discussions, poster sessions, etc. All participants (speakers) will need to register (and pay) for the meeting. Registration waivers may be available. Submit an online proposal at: www.leraweb.org/call-2024-NYC.

Other paper competitions include LERA Competitive Papers (complete papers up to 30 pages) or the LERA/AILR Paper Competition and the LERA/ICJI Paper Competition (paper proposals up to 3 pages), and the LERA Best Papers edition of the AILR Journal (complete papers up to 30 pages). Winning authors will be invited to present in special sessions at the meeting and may earn invitations to publish. Deadlines: Dec. 15, 2023, and Jan. 15, 2024.
